Wanted

Have you seen an original, nearly century-old Merion Road-Light in your neighborhood? The Lower Merion Historical Society and the Township's Historical Commission need your help! In 1915 the Merion Civic Association installed 124 new electric street lights to "adequately illuminate" the roadways of Merion making them "safer for pedestrians and vehicle travel". They were fabricated at least in part by the Smyser-Royer Company of York, PA and quickly "declared by experts as being unusually distinctive and of artistic design, and yet meeting every practical requirement of radiation." In cooperation with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, another eleven were soon installed at the stations within the boundaries of Merion.

Today only one complete example remains that we are aware of, recently restored by its owner, it is located on Winding Way in Merion Station. Another Road-Light post, missing its distinctive lantern head, stands on Hazelhurst Avenue, not far from Merion Tribute House, but those are the only know examples remaining. If you know of any others, or anything more about the story of these important pieces of the Township's early 20th Century history, please e-mail us at LMHistory@Comcast.net.

Building Photographs - To preserve Today for tomorrow's history
